

MARTIN LUTHER KING

THE FIGHT OF MARTIN LUTHER KING

- Martin Luther King was a shepherd and he lived in the United States. At the time the black people were not accepted by white people. For example, the black people couldn't eat in restaurants where the white people ate or when they used a bus they had to sit in the end of the bus. All this happened only in southern states because in northern states the condition was better for black people. Martin Luther King didn't support the use of guns and violence to get equal rights. The fight ended on August 28, 1968. During the fight, he went to Alabama, Birmingham, and in other places in the south of the United States. When they were in large numbers, they were in large numbers, they went to restaurants where black people weren't welcome. They were hindered by the police; in fact, they went to prison many times and sometimes police used violence against them. During the fight, many white people joined Martin Luther King. The fight ended with the March on Washington on August 28, 1968.

ROSA PARKS AN EXAMPLE OF INJUSTICE

Rosa Parks was a black woman that lived in Montgomery in Alabama. She had been working for long time to help black people before the police put her in jail. On december 1955 Rosa Parks said no a white person in Montgomery in Alabama. She had just finished working and she used the bus to go home. She was a very tired and infact she sat down on the bus but the driver asked her to get up because that place was reserved for white people. She refused to got up and she was arrested. For this she became a national hero.

NELSON MANDELA

- Nelson Mandela was an important person in South Africa. Nelson Mandela fought for the rights of black people in South Africa as Martin Luther King did in America. In South Africa there was the 'apartheid' that is the black people must live away from white people. From 1952 to 1960 Mandela was arrested and was released in 1990. In 1993 he won the Nobel Peace Prize for this. In 1994 he was the first black president of South Africa. In 1999 he retired as president. After his withdrawal he continued to inspire many people to fight for peace and equality. Nelson Mandela died in 5 December of 2013 when he was 95 years old.

BOB MARLEY

- Bob Marley was a Jamaican singer and songwriter. He played reggae music. He had a white father and a black mother but he had African origins. Bob's parents split up when he was only a young boy. When he was 10 years old, Bob Marley moved to Kingston and settled in the planned community of Trench Town. On February 10 of 1966, Bob married Rita Anderson, a singer in the group The Soulmates.

