

Little King

-Good morning, Little King.

+Hello

-To start this interview, you could introduce yourself to someone who doesn't know you yet.

+Of course. My real name is Juan and I'm a normal boy who is dedicated to making music and singing it.

-Perfect. And who or what inspired you to make music?

+Well, I started on the path of music because of the social position in which I found myself and because of my family too.

- What message would you give to your fans?

+I'd thank you for supporting my music and trusting me.

-What's the best thing about being a singer?

+For me the best thing about being a singer is doing what I like.

-And what is the worst thing?

+You don't have as much privacy and people are more aware of what you do.

-What advice would you give to someone who is starting out in music to be a singer?

+I'd tell him that if he likes it, he should work and make an effort to achieve his goals.

-How do you prepare before going out to act?

+Well, basically I don't think about it and I go out and do my best.

-How do you handle the nerves when acting?

+ Well, the truth is that I'm doing well. There are days that I have more nerves and others that I have less nerves, but I don't usually get very nervous.

-What song do you think gave you the push to fame?

+I think none of my songs are famous yet. But the most popular is "Black Marfil"

-Tell me a singer and a song that you like a lot.

-+Young Sarria and "Solo" by Yung Sarria

- As a child, what would you be when you grow up before being a singer?

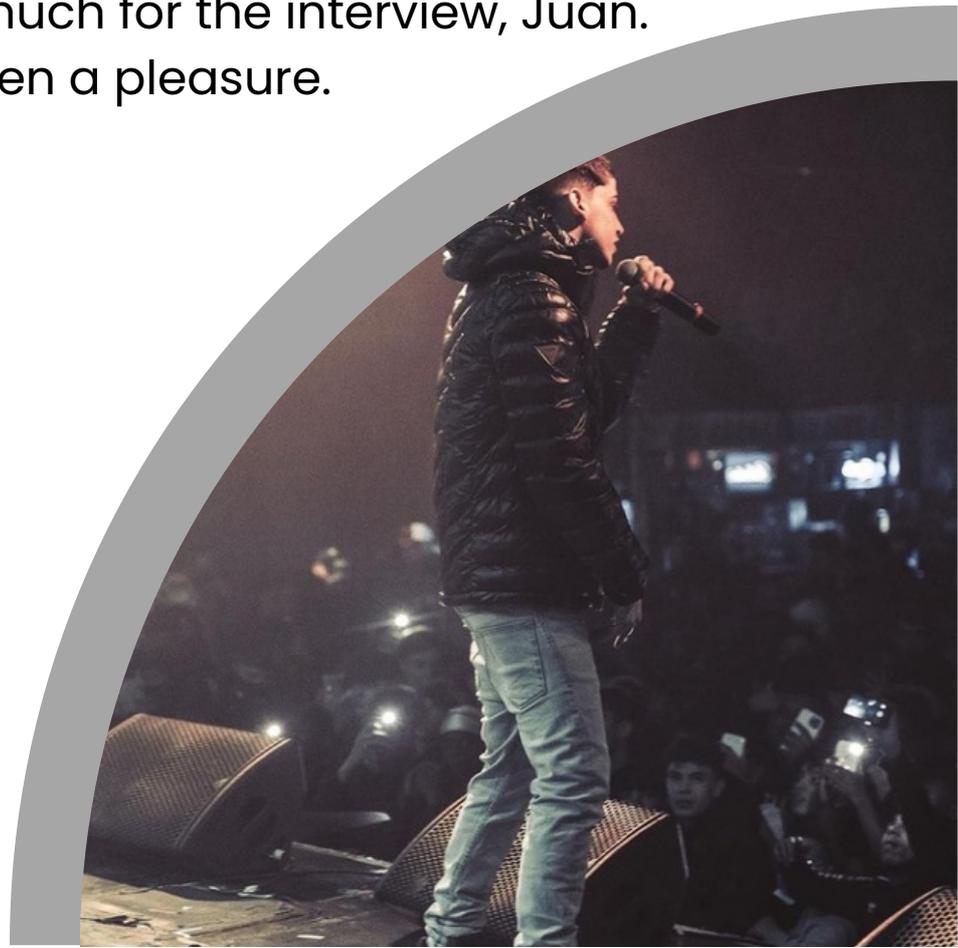

+Well, the truth is that before becoming a singer I had nothing in mind.

-Well, to end the interview, could you give some advices for all young people?

+I would tell them not to be influenced by anyone and to do what they like without caring what they told.

-Well, thank you very much for the interview, Juan.

+No problem. It has been a pleasure.
